Hi Kelly!

You did a great job selecting the overall tone of the website! I love the images that you used as well, especially the first page. Also, the box where the words go on nicely reflects the image shape: both geometrical and it creates a nice balance. It really shows Gordon's style and personality as a professional chef.

Here are a few suggestions that would help the overall aesthetic of the website!

- On the overall site, having more margin/padding on the top will help with the tightness of the menu bar. It seems to be creating some tension between the words and the edge.
- The words on the descriptions seem to be a bit tight, so maybe playing around with kerning or line spacing might help. Even trying new typefaces might work. I like this font as the title, but the descriptions are a bit hard to read.
  - You can even create multiple pages if you want to fit all the information
  - Or you can cut out some of the parts as long as the information flows
- Having a source page of where you got the images/information would be a nice touch! I see that there is a small section on the bottom of the Awards page, but the white space seems to be a bit distracting to the overall tone.

Overall, thank you for the beautiful mockup! I am excited to see the progress and the final outcome!!!
